A dialogue that commences with a plea or a solicitation never concludes favorably for either side. I have witnessed this occurrence on numerous occasions, leaving me well aware that the result will never meet the anticipated outcome – simply inquire with any Hare Krishna, Jehovah's

I am confident that they are a partially noble organization despite my initial skepticism, as they welcomed Emil as a Charter Member with a club jacket, secret handshake, and even a permanent discount at almost all of the Monk's

While the Emil association was disconcerting due to Emil's contrasting mantra of "Never letting the truth stand in the way of a good story!" that he acquired during his childhood in the abandoned oil fields of West Texas, I still had faith in these truth champions. Thus, I paid close attention when they approached me with an urgent plea for funding and tech support to expand into social media platforms such as Tickie Tockie and FaceeBookie. Despite my apprehension that they were on the verge of infiltrating Ahriman's inner sanctum of influence and their lack

The introduction to this tale remains unwritten, while the tale itself is far from reaching its potential destination.

I am completely clueless, and I eagerly await each word I pen.

No idea.

How about yourself?

Normally I am not a fool, but this calico lady has completely altered my perception with her charming smile and left me here to deal with the aftermath of a wild night out.

Standing at the crucial crossroads of deciding whether to head home or pursue her, the dawn softly hints that tomorrow will bring its own set of consequences along with my wallet filled with profound remorse.

Yet, this Calico Lady managed to bring a smile to my face.

While talking to my elderly mother on the phone, she pleaded with me to board the bus and return home immediately.

"Quickly!" were her final words before abruptly ending the call, leaving me to bear the cost of the expensive long-distance conversation.

As mentioned before, "I am not anyone's fool!"

and rather than heading home, I returned to the bar and settled down in the rear booth. I gazed into the eyes of the Calico Girl and instead of bidding farewell, I expressed the importance of maintaining faith and seizing this moment.

Then I showed her my wallet, hoping it wouldn't matter that even my bus fare home was gone. and with that, she was gone.

The saddest thing I know is sitting in a bus station with no money to pay for my fare home.

I never thought I could be so foolish. "What a pathetic loser of this modern era!" I silently exclaimed.

Glancing around,
I pondered whether I was the sole imbecile occupying the bus station.
In the past, I would have relied on hitchhiking to get back home, but nowadays, those conventional individuals in their luxurious vehicles refuse to offer rides to strangers. Instead, they accelerate while silently hoping that we aren't dangerous criminals.

"Trust me," the elderly alcoholic with the eccentric gaze assured me following another gulp of inexpensive whiskey from a petite flask he had concealed within a weathered paper sack.

He claimed that everything had undergone a transformation, although the majority remained oblivious to it.

"They were caught off guard."

As he departed, he pivoted, lifted his fist and yelled in my direction, "No matter what occurs, maintain a smile, for you and I are aware of the truth!"

I'm completely clueless about what just occurred.
Could it be possible that he mistook me for someone else?

I was briefly transported to the setting of an old western movie,
"Stagecoach Serenade," as we broke down on the Rocky Mountains east of Western Waterloo
Junction.

The seasoned driver turned to the inexperienced shotgun and advised, "No matter what the robbers demand,

These wealthy passengers can surely spare some of the riches they likely stole themselves."

"My dear, on this sultry night in Barbados, spellbound!"

At least that was the phrase I believed was quite clever to catch the attention of this eccentric girl as we stood on a damp sandy beach near the boardwalk when it all resurfaced to trouble me as her actual identity turned out to be Officer Harriet from the Barbados Vice Squad - she greeted me by saying "Little Darling?" while escorting me to her renowned intoxicated confinement facility.

I ventured outside the hotel to enjoy the refreshing autumn breeze of the mountains.

As I reached the corner, I noticed the familiar presence of downtown money changers,
accompanied by a casually dressed woman seeking a travel companion to Omaha.

She explained that she had a singing gig lined up for tomorrow morning, where she would perform old soul songs and folk ballads.

I assure you, this is not a fabrication. There is no deceitful bait to lure you into a mundane story with the false promise of a scantly clad damsel in distress to add journey's narrative.

As a member who helped

Therefore, I simply smiled and averted my attention without inquiring whether she, like Old Crazy Sally or the woman from the pawnshop, also conversed with angels and resided in a nearby apartment with her feline companion.

I greeted the police officer with a cheerful "Happy Good Friday!" as he instructed me to leave, deeming me a bit rowdy for his liking and the safety of the public.

As I made my way back to my hotel room, I couldn't help but recall the classic film "First Blood" and reflect on the fact that I

Life in these small border towns revolves around both virtue and vice, and it would be unwise for anyone to become entangled with a scantily clad bargirl who

It is imperative to retrieve

He expressed regret for his audacity and inquired if I possessed a cigarette that was already rolled.

I provided him with one, which he proceeded to light at his own pace.

The smoke in that poolroom hovered close to the ground like a misty summer haze.

It appears that smoking had regained popularity when Ahriman left with his most loyal WEF Goonies, as there was no intimidating lady from the

Just like life, these days are much shorter and many believe that it's best to make the most of the limited time you have remaining.

One might have assumed that following the downfall of the Great Social Reset, things would revert back to the traditional norms of the previous generation.

However, once again, you would be mistaken.

It is evident that the Great Social Reset and the resulting "Polite" Society were rooted in traditional late 20th Century moral values, which differ greatly from the current era of unrestricted and morally diverse times.

Once Ahriman was defeated, societies and national police states crumbled, leading people to indulge in the newly restored freedoms with

Anyway, the vocal tone of our new hobo friend reverberates through the pool hall, resembling the distressed, furious growl of a mistreated dog. He begins inquiring if any of us would be willing to contribute a dollar or more, as a Happy Meal is beckoning him.

Grinning, I recalled hearing that phrase frequently during my time at the rogue sample labs located just outside Burbank. It was there that the initial research was conducted on the first generation of Zombie Samples, which had the ability to bypass the Great Firewall and nearly topple the Great WeChat Empire.

That was the humorous chant that was embedded into every Zombie Sample to effectively communicate with CIS Humans while simultaneously unleashing the incurable

来自遥远边疆的对话

来自遥远边疆的对话 viruses of truth and common sense, causing chaos not only in this realm but across the entire Multiverse.

As soon as I realized that we were dealing with a first generation Zombie Sample who was just living off the grid by begging or bumming cigarettes, my initial sense of caution towards the stranger dissipated. Even though my Spider-Man instincts were still alerting me that this GOF Zombie Sample was hideous and his gaze was malicious; his attire was filthy but his hands were spotless, suggesting that he had not been transformed into a murderous robot by the renegade scientists at Skynet Labs, as was the situation during the concluding moments of Ahriman's final resistance at the Tulsa Space Port battle.

“Conversations from a Distant Frontier”

来自遥远边疆的对话

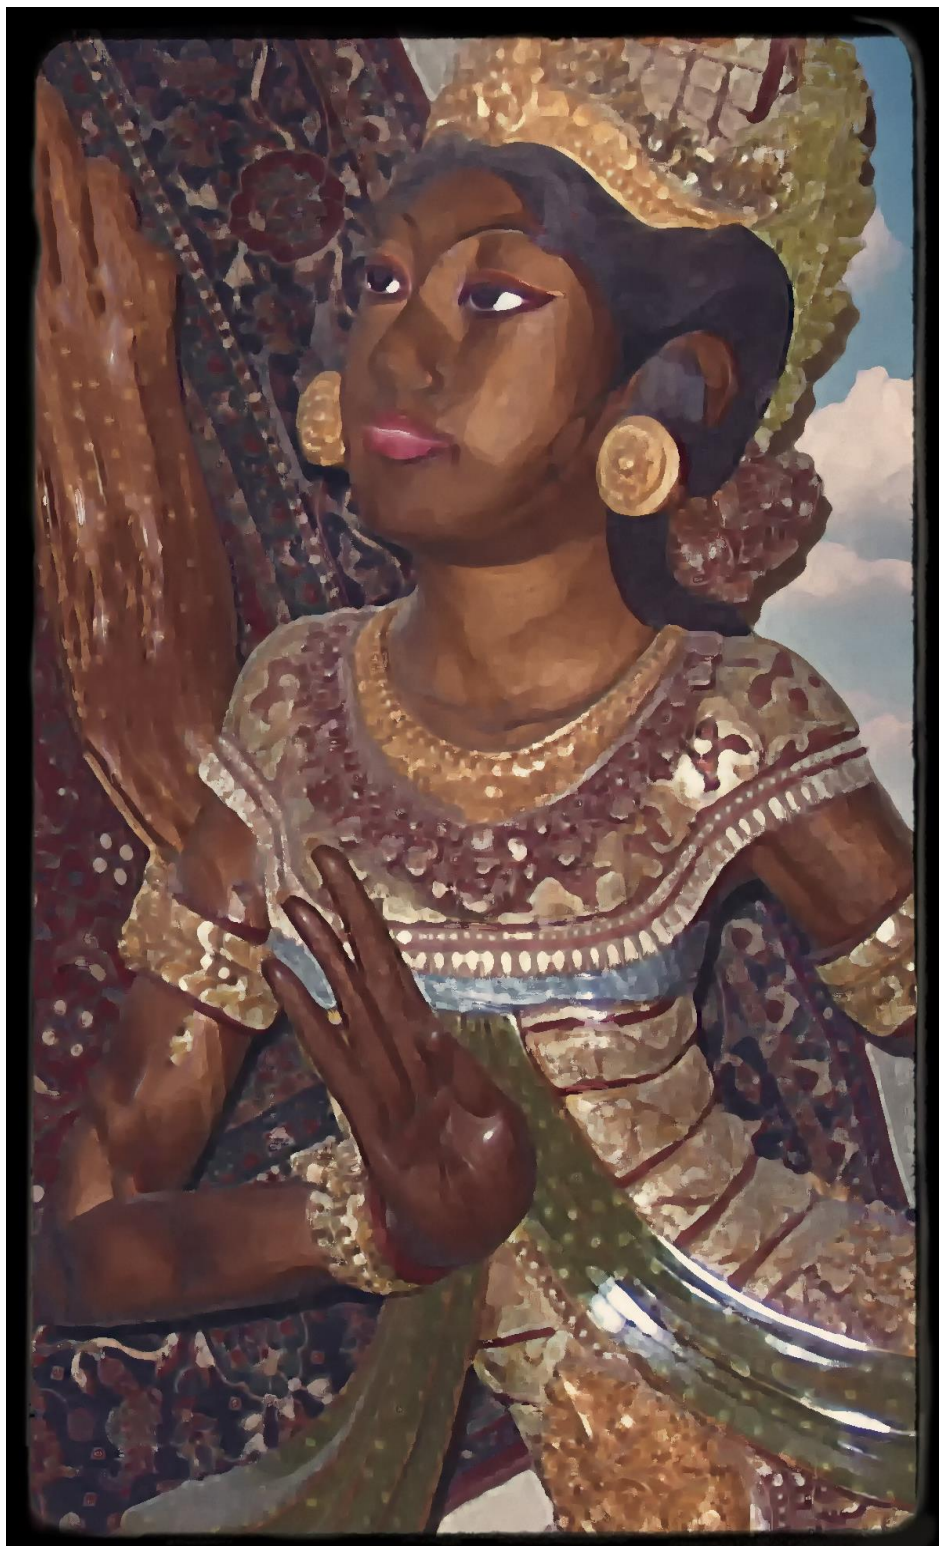

来自遥远边疆的对话

That indicated a positive sign, implying that we could leave him alone. Eventually, he would give up and wander off towards the Port of Saint Louis.

Surprisingly, he grasped the pool cue with the tenderness of a mother holding her child's hand, and being aware of my notorious inclination for hustling, it immediately grabbed my interest.

来自遥远边疆的对话

As I sat there, the waitress leaned in and spoke softly into my better ear, revealing that the Zombie Sample we were watching was deceiving us naive locals.

It seemed that his

“Conversations from a Distant Frontier”

来自遥远边疆的对话

programming had been tampered with, as pool hustling was not part of the original protocols for the first generation of Zombie Samples.

Acknowledging that the situation was not ideal, I quietly requested that she send young Karma to retrieve the sheriff using

来自遥远边疆的对话

来自遥远边疆的对话

our prearranged code phrase "Little Red Parker, please bring me a glass of brandy water."

Codes?

One can never be too certain about unfamiliar individuals who are passing by, and many towns display prominent signs at the outskirts

“Conversations from a Distant Frontier”

来自遥远边疆的对话

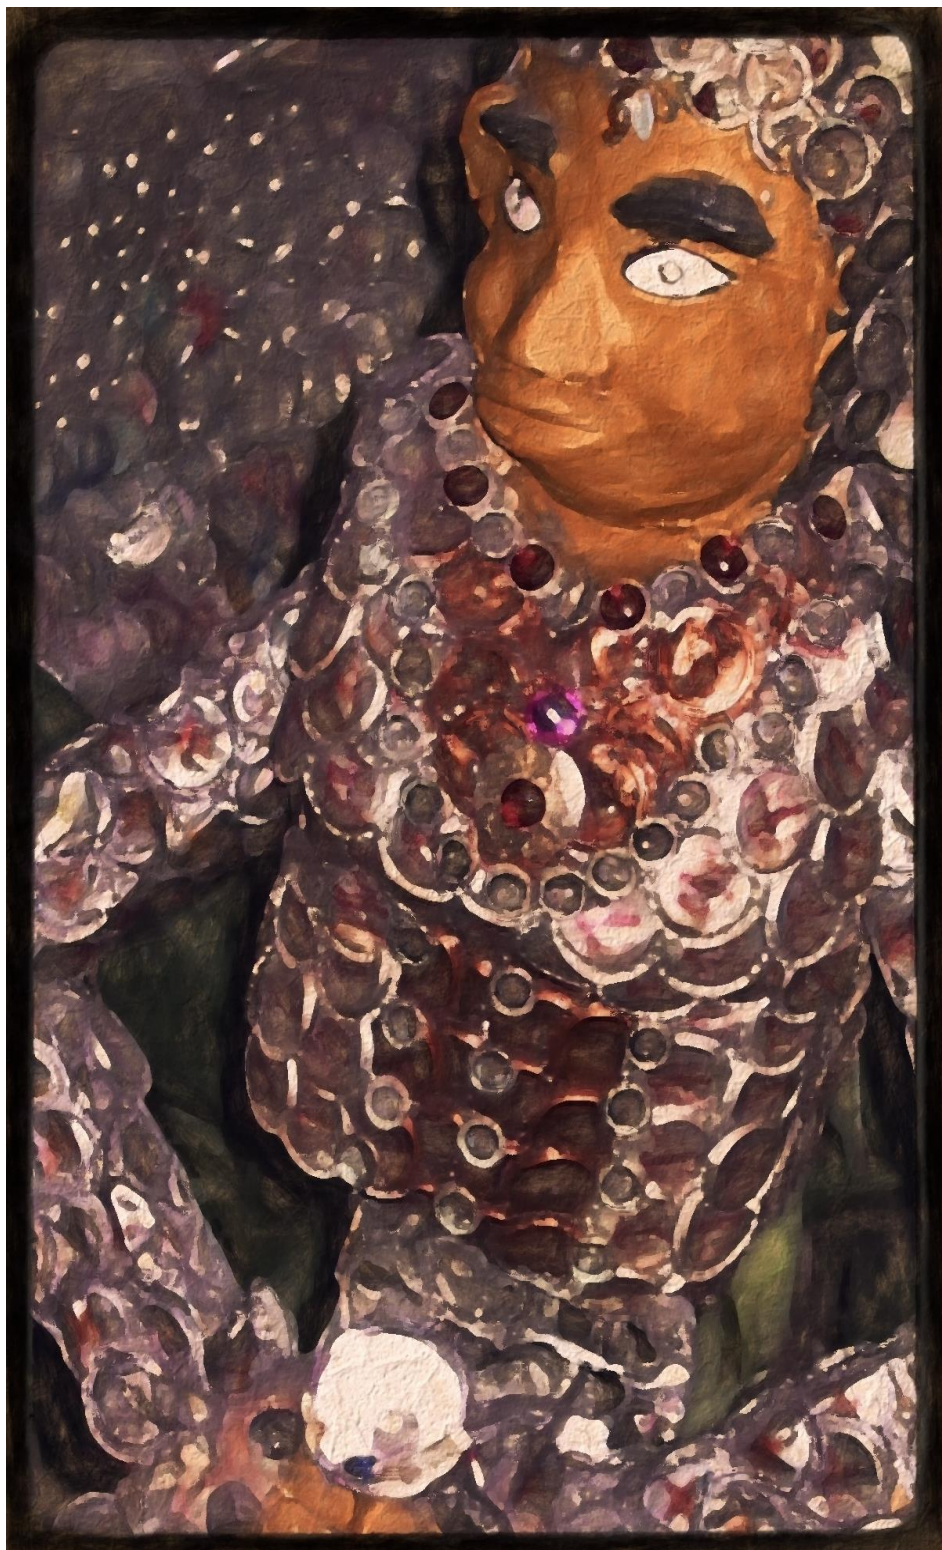

来自遥远边疆的对话

cautioning that "Strangers are allowed to pass through, but it is advisable not to linger after nightfall!"

I understand! It's quite a task to fit all that information on a sign, but considering the size of the signs and the fact that they were mostly

“Conversations from a Distant Frontier”

来自遥远边疆的对话

repurposed from the now defunct Interstate Highway, it's necessary.

Knowing the codes is essential for civil defense, as they provide guidance on how to prevent or handle any potential issues or disruptive individuals.

The sheriff came with a group of volunteer deputies, all of whom were former computer tech specialists during a time when their expertise was crucial to society, whether it was considered legitimate or not.

They, rather unkindly, urged the GOF Zombie

Sample to continue progressing and disregard the possibility of going back, as they could potentially end up in the city's ancient garbage dump next time.

I was contemplating the idea of concluding this event with a delightful brandy, unaware that the bar had not stocked genuine brandy ever since the DHL Pirates were expelled from the lower parts of the mighty

Chinese Gunboats, which safeguarded all river

Baton Rouge Republic.
I shouted to the waitress,

Gus, our regular bartender who had disappeared last week,
"One more Vodka in the
